Be the Author of Your Life Story Do you love stories? If you do, you're in good company! Stories have fascinated humans for thousands of years; guidance, enlightenment, and inspiration await us there. But what about the most important story you will ever encounter: the story of your own life? Is your life story one of power and accomplishment or one of confusion and impotence? Is that story soundly plotted or does it muddle along unguided? Is it written well, so that you and others can benefit from it? Most importantly, who is the author of your life story? Are you its plot master or is someone else penning the words while you just try to keep up? In this class, we will explore what story is, how stories are constructed, and what makes a story good. By sharing a few great stories we will buttress our understanding. And you will write a story of your own life - both the past you have already lived and the potential you want to fulfill. Join us, pick up the pen, enhance your literary and academic skills, and become the author of your own success at CWI and beyond! Hybrid course - has an online component

Movies that Move Us Do you like films that are inspiring, uplifting, and intriguing? Do you wonder whether movies can move people to action? The classroom, with all its inherent drama, conflict, and diversity, has provided the perfect setting for many books and movies in our culture. In this course we'll explore how education portrayed in cinema and literature compares to the real world, and we'll have some fun along the way. Additionally, we'll discuss how adults learn, in both a traditional and online environment. Students completing this course will be better prepared to succeed in college and in life. Whether you are just curious about how movies influence our lives or perhaps you are considering a career in teaching, join us to uncover the tips and tricks to achievement in school, and beyond. NOTE: Online sections of CWID are designed for students in fully online degrees. Students who are taking any face-to-face classes should select a face-to-face or hybrid section of CWID.

You Are What You Eat: Exploring Our Relationships with Food This course explores the complicated relationship between humans and their diet, using Michael Pollan's The Omnivore's Dilemma as a guide. In 21st century America, we have nearly limitless choices about what to eat. But those choices come with hidden costs. What we choose to eat affects everything from our personal physical and mental health to our communities to the global environment. Our diet may reflect deeply held ethical or religious beliefs. It may indicate our economic status or our cultural background. Or it may represent a mindful choice designed to fuel a healthy lifestyle. In this course, we will learn where our food comes from, how diet impacts our health, and what our individual diet choices mean within a global context. We will also learn practical tools and strategies to promote success in college and in life.

The Art of Influence "I haven't the slightest idea how to change people, but still I keep a long list of prospective candidates just in case I should ever figure it out." ? David Sedaris, Naked. This course will assess the elements necessary to create lasting and meaningful change in yourself and the world around you. We will delve into the topic of what makes change happen and how the world around us is uniquely designed to influence our behaviors. Using this knowledge, you will create unique projects of influence and change intended to make a positive difference in your life. Hybrid course - has an online component	$15.00

Ada County Campus Media and Self: Shaping Our Beliefs Media are central to culture and contribute daily to our communication, socialization, and core beliefs. The "ubiquitous assimilation" of information characterizes the 21st Century. Our beliefs about gender, race, and the consumption of good from food to clothing to dwellings are influenced by a constant stream of media messages, oftentimes without our conscious awareness. Ada County Campus Beyond the Academy Awards: Movies and Culture Most Americans, by the time they're eighteen, have watched more than a thousand movies. They can quote lines from Batman Returns and sing the entire sound track from Frozen. But do movies simply reflect our culture, or are they much more powerful, influencing the way we think, the choices we make, and how other people treat us? The purpose of this class is to examine these questions using a variety of contemporary American films, both narrative and documentary, as records of social attitudes and as a means for self-reflection and decision-making. How Not to Die: Surviving the Extremes Why is it so hard to breathe at the top of Mt. Everest and why can't a scuba diver race to the surface from 90 feet underwater? We will explore those topics as well as the extreme survival conditions in the desert and out at sea. How does the human body adapt physiologically to maintain homeostasis when we are challenged to survive? Similarly, how can you survive and thrive as a college student? Let's explore all the ways to make smart decisions in conditions you will face in and out of a classroom. NOTE: Online sections of CWID are designed for students in fully online degrees. TED-CWI: Lessons Worth Learning TED, which stands for Technology, Entertainment, and Design, is an organization famous for its "ideas worth sharing" in the form of 20-minute video presentations. Many are familiar with TED Talks and have probably watched a few, such as Simon Sinek's "How Great Leaders Inspire Action". TED uses ideas to inspire change in attitudes, lives, and ultimately, the world. Using Ted Talks and Ted-Ed (ucation) as our platform, this course will provide strategies to be successful in college while simultaneously sparking and celebrating your own ideas about learning and how to apply those ideas to your education. The final project of this course will allow you to showcase your innovation and skills through the creation of your own TED-Ed Lesson on student success skills. Rated (R)eality: Exploring Controversy in Media and Society "This is your last chance. After this, there is no turning back. You take the blue pill - the story ends, you wake up in your bed and believe whatever you want to believe. You take the red pill - you stay in Wonderland and I show you how deep the rabbit-hole goes." - Morpheus, The Matrix For some, the experience of becoming a college student can be very different than what they had expected or imagined. We all hold ideas and assumptions about the way things "really are," and about how the world works. When those ideas and assumptions are challenged, it can be both uncomfortable and liberating. This course introduces students to the college experience, and to ways of thinking and learning that can be both challenging and rewarding. By sociologically exploring interesting (and sometimes controversial) topics that are relevant in contemporary media and society, students will develop strategies for success in college as well as gain new and important insights into the ways in which they are shaped by - and connected to - the community, society and culture in which they live. Heroes and Villains What does it mean to be a hero or a villain? We will consider both famous and obscure examples of unique individuals and their circumstances. Heroic stories can inspire us to be persistent and resilient in the face of trials, whereas stories of villains can serve as a warning and strengthen our resolve. What factors lead to an individual's success or failure? Various case studies will be examined relating to topics such as culture, opportunity, personality, genius, persistence, and achievement. This is an interdisciplinary course, primarily drawing from sociology, psychology and history. You will be able to develop practical tools to define your own personal and professional goals and determine how you can overcome obstacles to achieve your goals. Transformative Storytelling: Shift Your World View Angela Davis said, "You have to act as if it were possible to radically transform the world. And you have to do it all the time." What does it mean to transform the world? It's an idea you'll hear as you begin your college journey, and this class will examine what that transformation can look like. We'll start building our classroom community by telling the stories of ourselves and our people; we will connect with each other by listening, reflecting, and thinking critically about the stories we tell ourselves and the world around us. Students will share their voices through oral storytelling and creative writing, and examine what the world can look like when it's rooted in interdependence, resilience, and regeneration. You Are What You Eat: Exploring Our Relationships with Food This course explores the complicated relationship between humans and their diet, using Michael Pollan's The Omnivore's Dilemma as a guide. In 21st century America, we have nearly limitless choices about what to eat. But those choices come with hidden costs. What we choose to eat affects everything from our personal physical and mental health to our communities to the global environment. Our diet may reflect deeply held ethical or religious beliefs. It may indicate our economic status or our cultural background. Or it may represent a mindful choice designed to fuel a healthy lifestyle. In this course, we will learn where our food comes from, how diet impacts our health, and what our individual diet choices mean within a global context. We will also learn practical tools and strategies to promote success in college and in life. Hybrid course - has an online component

Cryptography: Secret and Not-So-Secret Codes Throughout history, cryptography has evolved from messages written on the shaved heads of servants to highly robust computer encryption. In this course, we will examine the history of cryptography, study several cryptosystems, and practice techniques for cracking those cryptosystems. In addition, we will be examining our current level of dependence on cryptography, for instance, in our banking systems and cell phones. The mathematics required to understand and implement these cryptosystems is the equivalent of four years of high school mathematics. Beyond Downton Abbey It's fun to speculate how the other half lived, and none lived more lavishly and more fully than the British aristocracy. Downton Abbey shows us the lives of one family living before and through the interwar period. The family represents a class of people that was poor in cash but rich in power, property, and peerage. This course will look at the people that made up this class, analyzing what levels of power and control they had after WWI and through the interwar period; what ideals, thoughts, and structures made up the aristocratic sensibilities; and how their power declined after WWII. Fake News in the Real World Is your news fake? When information is available on demand in every imaginable format, how can you tell what's credible and what's made up to influence, mislead, or make a buck? In this class we will apply a critical thinking lens to the way we evaluate and share information as a foundation for how we understand the world around us. From fake news to satire, biased reporting, editorial, and fact-based journalism, we will learn about the different types of news sources and their roles in informing or misinforming readers. We will further explore the way human psychology, social media, and the "echo chamber" effect contribute to the fake news phenomenon. This is an interdisciplinary course drawing primarily from information science, media studies, and psychology. Stories have fascinated humans for thousands of years; guidance, enlightenment, and inspiration await us there. But what about the most important story you will ever encounter:the story of your own life? Is your life story one of power and accomplishment or one of confusion and impotence? Is that story soundly plotted or does it muddle along unguided? Is it written well, so that you and others can benefit from it? Most importantly, who is the author of your life story? Are you its plot master or is someone else penning the words while you just try to keep up? In this class, we will explore what story is, how stories are constructed, and what makes a story good. By sharing a few great stories we will buttress our understanding. And you will write a story of your own life - both the past you have already lived and the potential you want to fulfill. Designing My CWI Life: Solving Sticky and Wicked Problems Based upon design theory (specifically upon the thinking of Stanford professors Bill Burnett and Dave Evans in their book Designing Your Life: How to Live a Well-Lived, Joyful Life-this course explores how to create a student life at CWI and a career life beyond college that confronts and works through "sticky" and "wicked" (Burnett and Evan's terminology) problems-such as choosing a major or deciding which degree to pursue. Utilizing design theory tools such as curiosity, bias to action, reframing, awareness, and radical collaboration, we study how design theory translates and applies to designing effective approaches to sticky (college and career life problems) we all encounter. Keeping a "design" log of your research and explorations of your own sticky, wicked, or gravity problem builds toward the final project-a personal reflective essay that examines and analyzes your learning and design thinking progress throughout the semester.
