You Are What You Eat: Exploring Our Relationships with Food This course explores the complicated relationship between humans and their diet, using Michael Pollan's The Omnivore's Dilemma as a guide. In 21st century America, we have nearly limitless choices about what to eat. But those choices come with hidden costs. What we choose to eat affects everything from our personal physical and mental health to our communities to the global environment. Our diet may reflect deeply held ethical or religious beliefs. It may indicate our economic status or our cultural background. Or it may represent a mindful choice designed to fuel a healthy lifestyle. In this course, we will learn where our food comes from, how diet impacts our health, and what our individual diet choices mean within a global context. We will also learn practical tools and strategies to promote success in college and in life. Hybrid course - has an online component

Myths and Legends of the Spanish World In this class we will discuss a variety of Spanish Myths and Legends. Does La Llorona live in the water ready to gobble up unsuspecting children? Will the Chupacabra ever be caught? What are the origins of these and other legends and what can we learn about the cultural/historical context in which they originated? How do they compare with other legends we are familiar with? In this course we will investigate legends and the countries where they first appeared, and develop a variety of academic skills to allow us to think critically about the connection between history, culture, and literature. Format will include reading, writing, discussion, and presentations.

Language and Identity How literate are you? What parts of your life does literacy affect? What role does a person's speech and writing play in first impressions and stereotypes? Does your lexicon determine whether or not you get a job? A date? Should it? What causes linguistic stereotypes, such as French being the language of love and German the language of war? These questions and more will be addressed through movies, social media and literature. We will explore how the basic building blocks of language affect communication and how language and culture impacts a person's identity and their perspective of the world. Students will learn how an awareness of language and identity can help them to better navigate and participate in a multilingual world. Hybrid course - has an online component

Online TED-CWI: Lessons Worth Learning TED, which stands for Technology, Entertainment, and Design, is an organization famous for its "ideas worth sharing" in the form of 20-minute video presentations. Many are familiar with TED Talks and have probably watched a few, such as (insert example of popular talk?). TED uses ideas to inspire change in attitudes, lives, and ultimately, the world. Using Ted Talks and Ted-Ed(ucation) as our platform, this course will provide strategies to be successful in college while simultaneously sparking and celebrating your own ideas about learning and how to apply those ideas to your education. The final project of this course will allow you to showcase your innovation and skills through the creation of your own TED-Ed Lesson on student success skills. CWID-101-015H Ada County Campus The Backpacker's Guide to Life: Reaching Your School, Career, and Life Goals With the ultimate backpacking adventure, a climb of Mount Everest as its theme, this course explores the complicated relationship between humans and their interactions with nature and each other. How do setting our goals, sometimes too high (literally and figuratively) help or hinder our work and life relationships. We will research and discuss the dynamics of teamwork and working with others, recognizing the strengths and weaknesses of ourselves and those we are with. We will also define and apply critical and creative thinking skills, realizing that is sometimes acceptable to modify goals and actions that can change with our personal situation and life circumstances. CWID-101-016H Ada County Campus Beyond the Academy Awards: Movies and Culture Most Americans, by the time they're eighteen, have watched more than a thousand movies. They can quote lines from Batman Returns and sing the entire sound track from Frozen. But do movies simply reflect our culture, or are they much more powerful, influencing the way we think, the choices we make, and how other people treat us? The purpose of this class is to examine these questions using a variety of contemporary American films, both narrative and documentary, as records of social attitudes and as a means for self-reflection and decision-making. Through literature and film, we will investigate the larger questions of what it means to exist on earth today. How are science and technology shaping our societies? What are humanity's greatest challenges? What role can science fiction play in helping us understand our own communities and ourselves, and ultimately, what it means to be human? CWID-101-020H Ada County Campus Reading and Navigating through Idaho Whitewater Idaho is considered the "whitewater playground" for river enthusiasts. The state boasts numerous whitewater rivers that are easily accessible for day or multi-day trips. Rafting in whitewater will create an experience one will never forget. In addition to the thrill of whitewater adventures, students will explore other river recreational activities such as fishing, hiking, and camping on Idaho's waters. Students will also understand the importance of river conservation and stewardship. Just like choosing which river to run and how to prepare for a day of fun, it is important for students to research which educational path will help them achieve their personal and professional goals. How Not to Die; Surviving the Extremes Why is it so hard to breathe at the top of Mt. Everest and why can't a scuba diver race to the surface from 90 feet underwater? We will explore those topics as well as the extreme survival conditions in the desert and out at sea. How does the human body adapt physiologically to maintain homeostasis when we are challenged to survive? Similarly, how can you survive and thrive as a college student? Let's explore all the ways to make smart decisions in conditions you will face in and out of a classroom. NOTE: Online sections of CWID are designed for students in fully online degrees. Heroes and Villains What does it mean to be a hero or a villain? We will consider both famous and obscure examples of unique individuals and their circumstances. Heroic stories can inspire us to be persistent and resilient in the face of trials, whereas stories of villains can serve as a warning and strengthen our resolve. What factors lead to an individual's success or failure? Various case studies will be examined relating to topics such as culture, opportunity, personality, genius, persistence, and achievement. This is an interdisciplinary course, primarily drawing from sociology, psychology and history. You will be able to develop practical tools to define your own personal and professional goals and determine how you can overcome obstacles to achieve your goals. The Art of Influence "I haven't the slightest idea how to change people, but still I keep a long list of prospective candidates just in case I should ever figure it out." ? David Sedaris, Naked. This course will assess the elements necessary to create lasting and meaningful change in yourself and the world around you. Transformative Storytelling: Shift Your World View Angela Davis said, "You have to act as if it were possible to radically transform the world. And you have to do it all the time." What does it mean to transform the world? It's an idea you'll hear as you begin your college journey, and this class will examine what that transformation can look like. We'll start building our classroom community by telling the stories of ourselves and our people; we will connect with each other by listening, reflecting, and thinking critically about the stories we tell ourselves and the world around us. Students will share their voices through oral storytelling and creative writing, and examine what the world can look like when it's rooted in interdependence, resilience, and regeneration. You Are What You Eat: Exploring Our Relationships with Food This course explores the complicated relationship between humans and their diet, using Michael Pollan's The Omnivore's Dilemma as a guide. In 21st century America, we have nearly limitless choices about what to eat. But those choices come with hidden costs. What we choose to eat affects everything from our personal physical and mental health to our communities to the global environment. Our diet may reflect deeply held ethical or religious beliefs. It may indicate our economic status or our cultural background. Or it may represent a mindful choice designed to fuel a healthy lifestyle. In this course, we will learn where our food comes from, how diet impacts our health, and what our individual diet choices mean within a global context. We will also learn practical tools and strategies to promote success in college and in life. Hybrid course - has an online component

Scary Diseases: Understanding Epidemics &amp; New Diseases in Today's Society Are the diseases that make the front-page headlines such as Zika or Ebola worse than local outbreaks of more commonly known diseases such as measles, and mumps? What makes a disease newsworthy? This CWID course will take a scientists perspective on diseases including the development of vaccines. Vaccines in development for current diseases will be compared to vaccines that are approximately 50 years old, like the measles vaccine. Students will learn thinking and learning strategies that will help them to be more confident students as well as to have a better understanding of science behind disease. The Dead and the Undead Do you love The Walking Dead? Do you know how you would survive a zombie apocalypse? Are you obsessed with Dracula or Twilight? Have you ever thought about why we love zombies and vampires? This course will examine our fascination with zombies and vampires and what that reveals about our culture and ourselves. We will also look at traditions and beliefs surrounding death, particularly in American culture, but also throughout the world. Examining our cultural beliefs about death and our fascination with the undead will lead to examining other parts of our culture through a more critical lens, which will benefit students in all parts of their education, regardless of their primary area of study. This course will culminate in students showcasing analysis and research on a zombie specific area of interest.

Fantastical Futures and What They Teach Us Science fiction is a genre that explores not only a fantastical future or alternative present, but it also plays a pivotal role in critically examining our current societies. Through literature and film, we will investigate the larger questions of what it means to exist on earth today. How are science and technology shaping our societies? What are humanity's greatest challenges? What role can science fiction play in helping us understand our own communities and ourselves, and ultimately, what it means to be human? Transformative Storytelling: Shift Your World View Angela Davis said, "You have to act as if it were possible to radically transform the world. And you have to do it all the time." What does it mean to transform the world? It's an idea you'll hear as you begin your college journey, and this class will examine what that transformation can look like. We'll start building our classroom community by telling the stories of ourselves and our people; we will connect with each other by listening, reflecting, and thinking critically about the stories we tell ourselves and the world around us. Students will share their voices through oral storytelling and creative writing, and examine what the world can look like when it's rooted in interdependence, resilience, and regeneration. Media and Self: Shaping Our Beliefs Media are central to culture and contribute daily to our communication, socialization, and core beliefs. The "ubiquitous assimilation" of information characterizes the 21st Century. Our beliefs about gender, race, and the consumption of good from food to clothing to dwellings are influenced by a constant stream of media messages, oftentimes without our conscious awareness. In this course, we will explore these messages and their desired effects and develop ways to discern truth from propaganda, to effectively analyze media messages for function, intent and bias, and understand how this information contributes meaning to the lives of individuals and to society as a whole. NOTE: Online sections of CWID are designed for students in fully online degrees. Students who are taking any face-to-face classes should select a face-to-face or hybrid section of CWID.

Fake News in the Real World Is your news fake? When information is available on demand in every imaginable format, how can you tell what's credible and what's made up to influence, mislead, or make a buck? In this class we will apply a critical thinking lens to the way we evaluate and share information as a foundation for how we understand the world around us. From fake news to satire, biased reporting, editorial, and fact-based journalism, we will learn about the different types of news sources and their roles in informing or misinforming readers. We will further explore the way human psychology, social media, and the "echo chamber" effect contribute to the fake news phenomenon. This is an interdisciplinary course drawing primarily from information science, media studies, and psychology. You will learn practical strategies for assessing and evaluating everyday information, whether to write a paper, buy a car, understand a medical condition, or decide how to vote in the next election. Heroes and Villains What does it mean to be a hero or a villain? We will consider both famous and obscure examples of unique individuals and their circumstances. Heroic stories can inspire us to be persistent and resilient in the face of trials, whereas stories of villains can serve as a warning and strengthen our resolve. What factors lead to an individual's success or failure? Various case studies will be examined relating to topics such as culture, opportunity, personality, genius, persistence, and achievement. This is an interdisciplinary course, primarily drawing from sociology, psychology, and history. You will be able to develop practical tools to define your own personal and professional goals and determine how you can overcome obstacles to achieve your goals. YOLO: Existing in the Modern World "You only live once" is a popular tag line of our modern society. While some say it just started with a rap song, Soren Kierkegaard, a dusty old Dane who lived more than 150 years ago, had some ideas that look remarkably like the phrase we use today. Through a study of some of his main themes of philosophy such as "passionate inwardness," "subjectivity," "the individual," and "the leap of faith," we will go on a cultural treasure hunt to see these very popular themes reflected in the movies, music, and short stories that are all around us. By the time you have finished this course, you will be able to decide for yourself if Kierkegaard was indeed the first one to claim YOLO. TED-CWI: Lessons Worth Learning TED, which stands for Technology, Entertainment, and Design, is an organization famous for its "ideas worth sharing" in the form of 20-minute video presentations. Many are familiar with TED Talks and have probably watched a few, such as (insert example of popular talk?). TED uses ideas to inspire change in attitudes, lives, and ultimately, the world. Using Ted Talks and Ted-Ed(ucation) as our platform, this course will provide strategies to be successful in college while simultaneously sparking and celebrating your own ideas about learning and how to apply those ideas to your education. The final project of this course will allow you to showcase your innovation and skills through the creation of your own TED-Ed Lesson on student success skills. Ada County Campus Be the Author of Your Life Story Do you love stories? If you do, you're in good company! Stories have fascinated humans for thousands of years; guidance, enlightenment, and inspiration await us there. But what about the most important story you will ever encounter.the story of your own life? Is your life story one of power and accomplishment or one of confusion and impotence? Is that story soundly plotted or does it muddle along unguided? Is it written well, so that you and others can benefit from it? Most importantly, who is the author of your life story? Are you its plot master or is someone else penning the words while you just try to keep up? In this class, we will explore what story is, how stories are constructed, and what makes a story good. By sharing a few great stories we will buttress our understanding. And you will write a story of your own life - both the past you have already lived and the potential you want to fulfill. Join us, pick up the pen, enhance your literary and academic skills, and become the author of your own success at CWI and beyond! As intolerance based on race, religion, gender, sexuality and a variety of other factors permeate our news and social media, the "X-Men" present a popular cultural lens to consider the consequences of an "us vs. them" battle. This course will consider the role that diversity plays in our modern world, using the X-Men as a discussion focus as we explore common themes present in global diversity. Discussions will move through the history of the imprint, exploring themes of race, gender, and sexuality as modeled through the lens of the X-Men. The course will culminate with an assignment in which students will explore diversity and discrimination through the viewpoint of individual characters in the X-Men mythos.
