

<http://www.idahostatesman.com/2012/01/24/1966188/cwi-anticipates-gifts-to-help.html>

CWI Anticipates Gifts to Help with Vocational School Renovation
Idaho Statesman – Bill Roberts – January 24, 2012

The College of Western Idaho will announce gifts from two foundations Wednesday aimed at helping the community college complete renovation of the old Sam's Club building near the Nampa campus for a professional-technical school.

Both the J.A. and Kathryn Albertson Foundation and the Micron Foundation will make the gifts. The college said it would disclose the amounts Wednesday.

The Sam's Club building was purchased and is being updated with $13 million from the J.A. and Kathryn Albertson Foundation. But the school has still been about $4 million short of funds needed to complete the work.

When voters approved the creation of the College of Western Idaho in 2007, the plan was to move the Boise State professional-technical center off its campus by June of 2012. Several of those programs are headed to the the old Sam's Club building.